

IRONTON CASHIER ARRESTED

A. H. PROCTOR ADMITS COMPLICITY IN FIRST NATIONAL BANK HOLDUP

$10,500 Recovered in Jar Cached Near Ironton by Sheriff and State Official

Special Grand Jury to Be Convened; Bank Robbed on November 9 of $36,000

A. H. Proctor, cashier of the First National Bank of Ironton which was robbed on November 9 of $36,000 by four unmasked bandits, confessed yesterday afternoon to being an accessory to the robbery.

Proctor was arrested and placed in the county jail yesterday morning by Sheriff Claus A. Theorin and Charles D. Brown, of Minneapolis, manager of the protective department of the Minnesota Bankers association.

Officers recovered $10,500 in currency, found buried under two feet of earth in a butter jar near Ironton.

Proctor admitted his guilt yesterday afternoon in the presence of Isaac Hazlett, of Minneapolis, president of the First National Bank of Ironton; F. B. Coon, Wadena, vice president of the bank; D. L. Case, a nephew of Mr. Hazlett; C. D. Brown, Minneapolis, manager of the protective department, Minnesota Bankers association; County Attorney Walter F. Wieland, and Sheriff Claus A. Theorin. The testimony was taken down by a stenographer and examination concluded at 5 p. m. Sunday.

The currency recovered by officers who were directed to the location of the cache by Proctor is in the keeping of the state and will be used in the coming grand jury examination. A special grand jury will be convened. The money was laid neatly in the butter jar in bundles.

The investigation continues today with the purpose in mind of tracking down the four bandits who held up the bank and employees, one of whom was Proctor.

Proctor today refused to see anyone in his cell except his wife. He is about 50 years old, has a family of a wife and four children and has been connected with the Ironton bank for 12 or 13 years. Previously to that time he was with the First National bank of Duluth. He spent his boyhood in Verndale. He is prominent in Ironton village affairs.

The bank examiners last Friday finished an examination of the First National bank of Ironton and reported the bank in first class condition.

D. L. Case, a nephew of Mr. Hazlett, will remain in charge of the First National bank until further arrangements can be made. T. S. Nyhus, at present assistant cashier, will be elected cashier at the January meeting of the bank.

The arrest yesterday morning at 10 o'clock followed weeks of investigation by state and county officials.

Proctor was located in his home at Ironton yesterday morning by the officials. Following his momentary exclamation of surprise and fear he put on his coat and hat and stated to the officers that he was ready to be taken away. He was lodged in the county jail at the noon hour yesterday and questioned throughout the afternoon.

The robbery was executed on November 9 a few minutes before closing time of the bank at 4 o'clock. Leaving one man in a waiting car on the outside, three bandits entered the bank. John O. Lindahl, superintendent of the Crosby-Ironton high school had just completed some business and was in the act of leaving when he was forced back into the bank. Proctor was at his desk inside the railing and T. S. Nyhus, assistant cashier and Ernest Olson were behind the cages. The four were forced to lie prone on the floor at the point of guns. While one bandit covered the victims, the other two took $30,000 in gold and currency from the vault and forced the three employees and patron into the vault. The bandits then scooped up over $5,000 in currency and silver from the cash drawers and made their escape.

G. H. Storms, a shoemaker with his shop below the bank was attracted by noises from the vault and through the efforts of Stanley Jorgenson, a former employee of the bank was able to release the men.

A few days previous to the holdup the burglar alarm had been put out of commission and had not been repaired.

Proctor at the time of the robbery was one of the employees to give out a statement regarding the holdup. He stated at that time that the robbery occurred about 4 o'clock when one customer was outside and three cashiers behind the counter. One bandit covered the customer and shoved him around to the back of the room. All four were ordered to lie on the floor. The rest of the bandits were heard to enter the room and they heard the silver rattle as the money was being scooped up. Proctor at that time estimated that the bandits took from $32,000 to $33,000 and said that the cashiers and customer were in the vault about 25 minutes. He also notified Marshal Ridley of Ironton, Sheriff Claus Theorin and the Bankers Association.

Proctor described the bandits at that time as wearing broad brim hats pushed down on their foreheads. He stated at that time that there was only one of the bandits he could identify and that being the one who entered first. He said he wore a light grey overcoat.

State officers at the time of the holdup were amazed at the daring of the four holdup men who executed the robbery in daylight.

96 CATHOLIC REBELS KILLED IN TWO BATTLES

Mexico City, Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—Ninety-six Catholic rebels were killed in two battles in Jalisco state last week, according to a dispatch today from Guadalajara. Seventy-three Catholics were killed in a fight of six hundred rebels against a regiment of federal troops. Twenty-three were killed in a night between 300 rebels and the 61st regiment of federal troops. Among the killed were Jose Cabrales, a priest, the dispatch said.

The government believed today that the rebel force has been almost completely disorganized and expected to wipe out all traces of it in the next few days.

The two engagements were the result of a government plan, which involved combining federal forces in Jalisco, Michoacan and Aguas Calientes.

No report has been received of the extent of federal casualties.

STEAMER MARTIAN IS FAST AGROUND ON HARE ISLAND

CREW ON BOARD, SHIP NOT BELIEVED IN IMMEDIATE DANGER

Port Arthur, Ont., Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—The steamer Martian with its crew still aboard, remained fast aground on Hare Island today despite efforts of the freighter Glen Eagle to float it.

The ship was not believed to be in immediate danger.

Anxiety was felt for the tug Champlain, which went to the rescue of the Martian Friday and has not been heard from since.

The freighter Glen Eagle failed in its efforts to float the Martian when a cable snapped.

Wreckage from the steamer Lambton, 250-ton freighter, was found by coast guardsmen en route to Detroit. The vessel had broken in two off Isle Parisienne. The coast guard cutter was unable to approach the wreckage because of ice and high seas.

The tugs Sabin and Illinois circled the disabled vessel but saw no signs of life. Footprints in the ice leading to shore led to belief that the crew of 22 from the Lambton had sought shelter on the island.

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 12.—All of the passengers and crew of the shipwrecked Alaskan liner Northwest were safe today, according to radio messages to the offices of the Alaska Steamship Company here.

The Northwest went aground in a snow storm early Sunday at the entrance to Seymour Narrows on the coast of British Columbia.

The tug Explorer removed 112 passengers and later returned and took off the 26 members of the crew, the radio messages said.

Eagle Harbor, Mich., Dec. 12.—The 21-man crew of the steamer Al-trodoc was rescued yesterday by the coast guard cutter Crawford after fate of the men had been in doubt for days.

After fighting one of the most severe lake blizzards in years, the Al-trodoc was driven aground on a reef, according to the story of the wreck members of the crew told today.

A large hole was ripped in her prow and one side was nearly smashed in against the reef. The vessel split near the middle and the lower parts were flooded.

Four men made their way ashore in an open boat Saturday and brought the Crawford to the rescue. After battling the ice-jammed reef for 19 hours, the Crawford was able to get close enough to rescue the crew. Two small dories were nearly capsized dozens of times in the dangerous task of removing the crew.

CONGRESS LATEST INVESTIGATION OUTBURST AIRED

TENDS TO OVERSHADOW THE REAL BUSINESS OF THE SESSION

HEARST-MEXICAN PROBE AND VARE SMITH ELECTION OCCUPY SENATE

By CARL D. GROAT (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Dec. 12.—Congress' latest "investigation outburst" tended today to overshadow the real business of the session.

While the senate turned to the task of organizing—completing committees which do the behind-the-scenes work on important bills—and the house plunged into the tax reduction measure, the Hearst-Mexican investigations and the preliminaries for further Vare-Smith election investigating occupied much of senate members' time.

Investigation into publication by the Washington Herald (a Hearst paper) of documents purporting to show a plan of President Calles of Mexico to bribe four U. S. senators had taken a sensational turn over the week-end when the state department was called into the matter.

Mexican Ambassador Tellez, standing on a generally recognized principle of international law, sought to prevent the Reed (Pa.) committee from enforcing a subpoena served on Consul General Elias of New York. The state department supported Tellez, and sought to call off the senate investigators. Chairman Reed of the committee, conferred Sunday with Assistant Secretary of State Castle, presumably on the question of safe-guarding Mexico's rights.

The Vare issue was listed for action today. The senate proposed to vote on a resolution clearly empowering the Reed (Mo.) investigating committee to continue its work. Senators-elect Vare (rep., Pa.) and Smith (rep., Ill.) were expected to ask the committee to give them an investigation or trial, which they said would clear them of charges that they spent excessive amounts in their elections.

Senate committees were due to begin work this week on farm relief and flood control.

The Mexican government was understood to be willing for Elias to testify, but resented the subpoena which was understood to have been prepared, and probably served. Members of the committee Saturday had said merely that Mexican officials would be "invited" to attend.

The Mexicans held the Hearst documents were forgeries. They were represented as feeling that William Randolph Hearst was the man to subpoena rather than Elias.

Around Capitol Hill there was much speculation as to why this form of procedure was undertaken. Reed insisted the investigation was intended to clear an implied blot on the senate's integrity. Others suggested that, along with such motives, Reed might see an opportunity to complicate or obscure the Vare seating fight issue. In this connection, it was recalled that at the height of the oil investigations a few years ago a "red" scare was developed which some then suggested was a case of distracting attention.

In any case, the subpoena issue, coming at a time when the administration is seeking to improve Mexican-American relations, served to cause some embarrassment to state department authorities. The upshot may be withdrawal of the subpoena or a denial that any was issued.

CONGRESS TODAY

House—Continues consideration of tax bill. Flood control committee receives engineering testimony.

Senate—Organizes, electing officers. Considers resolution authorizing continuation of Reed campaign fund investigating committee.

HOPE TO AVERT THREATENED STRIKE OF TRACTION MEN

Chicago, Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—Chicago street car and elevated line operators met with union representatives today, with both sides confident that the threatened traction strike would be definitely averted before the conference ended.

A special joint mass meeting of elevated and surface line employees, called for Wednesday night, has been cancelled, indicating complete confidence of the union chiefs that there will be no strike.

Selection of a neutral arbitrator to settle disputes between the companies and workmen was expected at today's meeting. Failure of the operators to name an arbitrator from a list of candidates submitted by the unions led to the threat of a strike in the middle of the Christmas shopping rush.

1 KILLED AND 6 INJURED IN RAIL WRECK

DETROIT LIMITED TRAIN OF THE BALTIMORE & OHIO WRECKED

ACCIDENT OCCURRED AT CURVE, STATION 25 MILES FROM PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—One man was killed and six persons were injured when the Detroit Limited train of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad was wrecked on a curve last night at Guffey's Station, 25 miles east of here.

Reports from officials of the railroad today indicated the train was wrecked deliberately. Investigation, according to railroad officials, showed that bolts had been removed from the angle bar and spikes removed from the ties on the rail on the outside of the curve.

C. H. Wedder, of McKeesport, Pa., baggage man, was killed, according to railroad reports.

The engine, a combination baggage and chair coach, a day coach and a Pullman were derailed as the west bound train struck the curve. Three other Pullman coaches of the train remained on the track.

The locomotive was driven into a hillside and the coaches, although remaining upright, were thrown across the track.

Wrecking crews were expected to clear the tracks for through trains before noon.

E. A. Peck, general superintendent of the railroad, made no direct accusations that vandals had tried to wreck the train, but his report indicated such a theory.

"Investigation showed that bolts had been removed from the splice bar and spikes pulled on the outside of the high rail of the track," Peck said. "This work seemed to have been done recently."

Peck said he could conceive of no reason for an attempt to wreck the train.

CALL MILITIA TO PREVENT LEGISLATION

3 COMPANIES OF OKLAHOMA NATIONAL GUARD ARE CALLED OUT

GOVERNOR JOHNSTON SEEKS TO PREVENT MEETING OF LEGISLATURE

Oklahoma City, Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—Three companies of Oklahoma City units of the National Guard were called out by Adjutant General Chas. F. Barrett at 2 A. M. today under proclamation of Governor Johnston to prevent meetings of the state legislature.

Officers of two infantry companies and one machine gun company were at the capitol before daylight.

Brigadier General C. E. McPherrin was in charge.

Governor Johnston in his official statement to General Barrett asserted his belief that all matters connected with the meeting of the legislature should be held status quo until the various courts litigation had been decided.

Acting on the governor's order, General Barrett issued the proclamation and officers of the guard were tumbled out of bed and sent hurrying to the state house.

General Barrett stated that business would go on as usual at the capitol today, with the general public and employees of the state house admitted as usual.

It also was stated that members of the legislature would be admitted to the capitol as such but would not be permitted to assemble for official business.

Although only officers of the three guard units were at the capitol early, the entire personnel of the units was to be called into duty within a short time, it was said.

The governor did not actually declare martial law, merely calling out the troops to the state house to prevent the insurgent legislature from continuing its business.

The governor, pointing to the recent state supreme court opinion holding the legislature could not convoke itself without the call of the governor, has labelled its actions as "leading toward anarchy."

The supreme court has been asked for a rehearing on that portion of its opinion holding the session illegal.

Calling out of the troops follows the voting of five charges of impeachment against him by the insurgent house committee, ready to be passed upon by the house scheduled to reconvene today.

The insurgents also announced they had voted three impeachment charges against Harry B. Cordell, president of the state board of agriculture.

The insurgent attack follows months of political unrest in Oklahoma, beginning almost immediately after the inauguration of Johnston a little more than a year ago.

The insurgents first were outspoken against the governor when they differed with him over highway department appointments and the retention of Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, wife of the state health commissioner, as his confidential secretary.

The insurgents charged Mrs. Hammonds was the "boss" of the Johnston administration.

Governor Johnston in his official statement to General Barrett asserted his belief that all matters connected with the meeting of the legislature should be held status quo until the various courts litigation had been decided.

Acting on the governor's order, General Barrett issued the proclamation and officers of the guard were summoned out of bed and sent hurrying to the state house.

General Barrett stated that business would go on as usual at the capitol today, with the general public and employees of the state house admitted as usual.

It also was stated that members of the legislature would be admitted to the capitol as such but would not be permitted to assemble for official business.

Although only officers of the three guard units were at the capitol early, the entire personnel of the units was to be called into duty within a short time, it was said.

The governor did not actually declare martial law, merely calling out the troops to the state house to prevent the insurgent legislature from continuing its business.

The governor, pointing to the recent state supreme court opinion holding the legislature could not convene itself without the call of the governor, has labelled its actions as "leading toward anarchy."

The supreme court has been asked for a rehearing on that portion of its opinion holding the session illegal.

Calling out of the troops follows the voting of five charges of impeachment against him by the insurgent house committee, ready to be passed upon by the house scheduled to reconvene today.

The insurgents also announced they had voted three impeachment charges against Harry B. Cordell, president of the state board of agriculture.

The insurgent attack follows months of political unrest in Oklahoma, beginning almost immediately after the inauguration of Johnston a little more than a year ago.

The insurgents first were outspoken against the governor when they differed with him over highway department appointments and the retention of Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, wife of the state health commissioner, as his confidential secretary.

The insurgents charged Mrs. Hammonds was the "boss" of the Johnston administration.

Flared Outlines in Fall Fashions

Uneven Hemlines and Unusual Neckline Prominent in Autumn Models.

In entering upon new seasons the outstanding features are naturally stressed. Each year the tendency is to exhibit either a decidedly new silhouette, fabric of fashion idea that will be a complete departure from previous years. Other seasons will feature sports tendencies in dresses for all occasions, while still others will show the purely feminine mode dominant.

Among the autumn dress tendencies that are certain to attain prominence are the flared outlines secured by several new means, the uneven hemline, which will have marked popularity, judging by models, and unusual necklines. The tendency to have all frocks designed along sports lines—so evident during the summer season—will be obscured by the definite inclination toward more formal silhouettes.

The new dresses are feminine in the extreme in their general aspect. But this femininity does not permit an abundance of trimmings and furbelows. The day is entirely past that could exhibit a marked degree of trimmings, even though the masculine type of gown is no longer seen.

The hemline, while still uneven, will not change materially in its length. It could not very well be shorter, and there seems little likelihood of it creeping down much—except in certain types of dresses that demand for harmony a longer skirt.

Maria Corda, motion picture actress featured in "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," who dresses to best advantage her type of loveliness, has selected an interesting costume for fall. It is of beige georgette with peasant braiding featured on the sleeves. The loose blouse has many knife plaits set on a deep yoke of self-material. The blouse effect is obtained by a belt of grosgrain ribbon in the tones used in the sleeve embroidery.

Mice to Yield Skin to Vie With Serpent Hide

Skins of field mice may take rank with serpent skins and the hide of the lizard among adjuncts to feminine beauty if agriculturists in certain parts of France have their way.

Plagued by an abnormal visitation of the pests, they have written style creators in Paris to see what they can do about popularizing leather made of mouse hide.

Field rats, larger than mice, have almost disappeared from Hungary since leather finishers found a means of using their skins for box coverings and in making shoes, the agriculturists pointed out.

Black Lace Theater Hat Is Very Close Fitting

So few people want a woman to wear a hat at a theater that most of them are obsessed with a desire to do so. They say they are becoming, which is true, and that every woman has her type and owes it to herself to enhance it by a hat, which is also true. However, nobody could object to the hat designed for evening wear by a noted French milliner, even at a theater. It is black lace, very close fitting, of the turban type, with a rose tucked over either ear.

Waists

Few women have a waist any more. Those who have not are beginning to cultivate one or seeking the corset fitters. Evening frocks undoubtedly stress the waistline and while they do not aim at the wasp-waisted effects of the golden nineties, a distinct slimness between hips and bust is desirable.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

The Age of Chivalry

A GROUP of armed men rode into the French city of Tours. Three of them had patches over their left eyes; two had not spoken in a year; another's right arm was bound to his side. Each wore in his helmet a glove, a veil or a jeweled sleeve.

Now, none of these men were injured in the eye or arm, and none were dumb. They were simply "under vow." Knights all, they were products of the Age of Chivalry—an age that began in common sense and decency, culminated to a form of eccentric insanity, and left world-wide influences for good.

Chivalry had its earliest rise before the days of Charlemagne and was at its height a century or so after his death. It took its name from "cheval" (a horse), and meant originally "cavalry"—the idea being that horsemen belonged to the higher and noble classes—in other words, to the knight-hood class.

The times were lawless, governments were unsettled, might overruled right and the weak were driven to the wall. To correct these abuses, knighthood, or chivalry, was instituted. Its basic principles were protection of the helpless, courtesy, reverence of women, the redressing of wrongs and personal uprightness.

As the men who took such pledges belonged to the wealthier and "armed" classes, they were in a position to make good their vows. In times and countries where laws were often unenforced and where abuses flourished uncorrected on every side, the assistance rendered to women and to the poor by powerful noblemen was the chief thing that kept the world from relapsing into utter barbarism.

But as time went on chivalry was carried to idiotic extremes, especially regarding women. Knights would marry for financial or other motives of expediency. Their wives were usually regarded as mere housekeepers and nurses. But each knight, by the customs of chivalry, was supposed to have some feminine object of adoration, in whose name and for whose honor he was expected to perform prodigies of valor. This woman to whom he dedicated his deeds was seldom, if ever, his wife. In fact, she was nearly always some one with whom he had never spoken and who, perhaps, did not know of his very existence. It might be a damsel whose face he had seen at a lattice; whose picture he had chanced to behold; or perhaps, some woman of whom he had merely heard or read.

But henceforth she became his guiding star, the object of his reverential homage; the loved one whose glove, veil or sleeve he aspired to wear in his helmet; for whose glory he slew other knights, redressed wrongs, succored the needy. If he won glory he was supposed to lay it all at her feet.

And usually that was as far as her acquaintance with her went. Meanwhile his neglected wife at home took care of his castle, reared his children and submitted tamely to second place in his affections.

The folly of the custom went still further. Men took to wearing patches over their eyes, to maintaining endless silences and to other petty discomforts in the name of the adored lady of their dreams. These patches, fits of dumbness, etc., were to endure until the victim had performed some deed he considered worthy his lady's praise.

At the age of twelve a boy of good family would be sent to the castle of some famous knight or other noble. There he became a page. Besides learning horsemanship and the use of arms he was supposed to fetch and carry for the women of his master's family, learn hair-dressing, lute-playing, reading, singing and other supposedly gentlemanly arts, including heraldry, the rules of etiquette and the flowery, high-flown speech of the day. When a little older he was promoted to the rank of squire and was permitted to carry his lord's shield and spare weapons and to accompany him everywhere as a sort of upper servant. Later, through some deed of prowess or by courage in the field, he qualified for the golden spurs of knighthood, taking the solemn vows and preparing for the accolade (or ceremony of investiture) by fasting and prayer.

In time, of course, knighthood, like other good things, became corrupt. Many knights forgot their vows, wrung money from the poor and maltreated the helpless. But the true spirit of chivalry never wholly died. To it we owe the best of medieval culture and progress, the upholding of order, religion and the small, sweet courtesies of life. Without it progress would have been set back for centuries and women relegated to the rank of mere slaves.

Poemness, fair play, etiquette, modern regard for women and the public impulse of charity—all these had their rise in chivalry.

While chivalry was perhaps an era rather than an "event," yet a knowledge of its history and customs is necessary to a full understanding of the motives prompting the Crusades and other great adventures which history records.

From the Tenth to the Fifteenth century chivalry was in its prime. Its follies and absurd regulations then began to decline, but its inestimable benefits will always endure.

Dressing Misses Eight to Twelve

Frocks, Headgear and Shoes That Are Appropriate for Children.

"The mother's aim in dressing a child between eight and twelve should be to turn her out an unobtrusive little person who knows she is not yet entitled to the center of the stage," writes Virginia Bible, in the Woman's Home Companion.

"The other day I passed at different times two little girls about eleven years old. One was with her mother and each was a very smartly turned-out person. The daughter wore a green coat with white fur on the collar and down the front. Her hat was a close chic model of the same fabric as the coat with a band of white fur around her face. She wore long white ribbed silk stockings, white suede shoes and kid gloves. She was beautifully and smartly dressed and in good taste. She was conscious of her clothes in a well-bred manner and she could hardly be blamed, for many turned to look at her.

"As I passed on I felt that she was being cheated of something that belonged to her. She was skipping a grade in which she could have had great fun.

"A few minutes later I passed a little girl with her father. She was dressed in a blue reefer and small blue hat with a medium stitched trim. She wore long tan stockings of tulle and high brown shoes with tan calf skin gloves. She was getting a great deal of pleasure out of that walk and seeing many more things than the other little girl.

"As for hats, a small tight-fitting beret cap of felt in brown, blue or possibly red makes an excellent head covering for school and play. The small-brimmed hats of felt which turn either up or down and have only a ribbon wrapped around the crown are serviceable for fall and winter.

"The close-fitting brimless hats are too grown-up and the large-brimmed ones too much in the way. The polka-bonnet variety is much too fussy and picturesque.

"Coats are best when well cut but untrimmed. Buff, rust or dull green will do, but none is so good as dark blue. Above all, don't choose plaid. It is overpowering and not at all suitable. One of the smart day schools in New York will not allow its pupils to come to school in plaids.

"Shoes should be high in winter but may descend to a sandal in summer. High shoes may be of brown leather, elk skin, white buckskin or canvas. For dress occasions the patent leather slipper with ankle strap is worn until the foot grows to such a size that the strapless pump is better. Of course no heel but the large flat one is correct.

"The girl of this age-group may wear either long socks or long stockings of lisle, cotton or wool; for dress occasions, ribbed silk, but never plain sheer hose. Plain color in a champagne or beige shade is preferable to the fancy sports socks, which the youngster herself will probably prefer.

"Her lingerie will be much the same as that of her younger sister, except that she may begin to wear jersey silk bloomers and vests to match her crepe de chine frocks. Usually no slip is needed.

"The fancy pink silk and satin slips are for later years.

"I like pajamas best for this age. Striped cambric in boyish models with frogs down the front and long or short sleeves have the kind of boyish swagger that belongs to this period. Bath robes of striped or checked flannel are also especially appropriate."

The term "temperamental" has usually been applied to artists, actors and singers. But it can be correctly applied to anyone who has an active, creative mind.

But let us look through his writing! We will find in the writing of one who may be called temperamental very unique letter formation. Letters that impress us immediately as being different. Flowing lines are seen in conjunction with alternate points and angles. Many different angles of pitch or slant are seen. Many different bars.

A wavy baseline will be evident—first up, then down. Signs of vanity will also be seen. High loops on the first part of the capital letter M and much underscoring of words and signatures. Emphasis will be plain, meaning the pressure of certain lines will be pronounced. Then again we may find a weak and shaky looking script with many points and angles. Variation in size of letters in the same words and a lack of firmness some times is seen in the writing of one who is temperamental.

Flared Outlines in Fall Fashions

Uneven Hemlines and Unusual Neckline Prominent in Autumn Models.

IDLE ACRES A SOURCE OF INCOME

A WISCONSIN man, as reported in the St. Paul Pioneer Press, takes the stand that a substantial source of income is being neglected on some Wisconsin farms, and one may add, on some Minnesota farms as well.

Idle land, especially on pioneer farms, can be made to produce a profitable forest crop pending its development for agriculture, stated Raphael Zon, director of the Federal lake states forest station, when attending the short course in timberland management at the University of Wisconsin.

Properly handled, this land will yield an annual income in ties, pulpwood and cordwood, as well as saw lumber.

The woodlot as a source of income has been too long overlooked by farmers, Zon contends. Even its possibilities as a source of material need on the farm are seldom realized or put to their full advantage.

A survey of 141 Northern Minnesota farms indicates that the average cash receipts from forest products amount to $217, nearly as much as the crop receipts. These products consisted largely of posts and ties with some poles and cordwood.

"Farmers should be vitally interested in the way in which our forest and lumber problems are worked out. In the aggregate, they constitute the largest group of users of lumber and the products made from wood. They are also the largest producers of wood. A large portion of forest products is supplied to the market from farm woodlots," Mr. Zon pointed out.

Zon feels that Wisconsin is turning a new leaf in forest conservation. Although the state has for a long time lagged in the protecting and upbuilding of its forests, it is now awakening to its obligation. The permanent maintenance of the wood using industries now active in Wisconsin, he said, a matter of great importance in the welfare of every citizen in the state.

CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS

ALTHOUGH Brainerd may not have its streets decorated in Christmas colors and electric lights as Minneapolis and Montevideo and other cities are revealing, nevertheless we have the Christmas windows of the stores resplendent and gay and offering every inducement to buy something.

As mentioned by the Duluth Herald window dressing for show windows has come to be one of the fine arts. The merchant naturally is thinking of profit, but that is not the only thing he thinks about when he plans his attractive front. He wants to have a compelling and artistic display. He racks his memory for something new to draw the crowd. He enjoys beauty as much as any one.

One dealer decides that his windows shall be filled with the best merchandise, showing class and dignity, appealing to the practical. Another decides on artistic simplicity with lights and fancy touches. The next one, who may be historically minded, shows a historic tableau of old times, while his neighbor undertakes a fairyland revue.

Coupled with his window display, the progressive merchant carries his newspaper advertising, an appeal which is read in the home and deliberated over by the family planning its purchases for the Yuletide. This appeal is of the most importance. The advertisements are scanned for their suggestions and the prices quoted enable all to do their shopping in advance and to meet the budget self-imposed.

HARD COAL REVIVAL SOUGHT

THE DISPATCH notices that a committee organized in the hard coal fields to devise means of rehabilitating the hard coal market will consider various plans at a meeting at Wilkes Barre, December 12.

The advent of oil as a fuel, used by railways and steamships, and to heat our homes, has been a disturbing factor in the hard coal market. Strikes in the hard and soft coal fields have at times shaken the source of supply of black diamonds.

One of the best ways to rehabilitate the industry is a comprehensive campaign of advertising carried on in the daily press. The oil burner men advertise extensively in pushing their product and the hard coal men may find it necessary to advertise their product.

THE annual convention of the American Road Builders association, to be held this year in Cleveland, January 9 to 12, will be the largest gathering ever held by the organization. It is twenty-five years ago that the association was organized and a Minnesota man, Commissioner C. M. Babcock, will have the honor of presiding at the silver anniversary. Mr. Babcock was elected president at the last convention in Chicago.

CHRISTMAS at times carried tragedy in its wake. One reads of Andrew C. Foster of North Pelham, N. Y., who remonstrated in his home and took his wife to task because her Christmas list outran the size of his purse. Next morning he found his wife dead on the kitchen floor with the gas jets of the range wide open.

MUCH to the relief of Brainerd, the frigid, stinging air of the recent blizzard period has been succeeded by milder weather and a south wind which carries some warmth in its breath.

KENTUCKY recently had to choose between the loss of its famous derby and going Republican. It swallowed the G. O. P. governor and saved its horses.

A KANSAS CITY writer claims that the flapper's dress is an expression of her soul reaching out for beauty. In other words, she is baring her soul.

BRAINERD is voicing no complaint because of the visitation of the blizzard. It did not single out Brainerd, but spread its wintry blasts in all directions.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

(By Dodd, Mead & Company.)

Napoleon "the Little"

FIRST, Napoleon the Great, and then—more than a quarter-century later—a man whom his enemies termed "Napoleon the Little." In other words, Charles Louis Napoleon Bonaparte, nephew and step-grandson of the first Napoleon. A man who inherited all his uncle's ambition, unscrupulousness and charlatanism, with not one per cent of his greatness, his genius, his power of swaying the destinies of the world. Yet this later and lesser emperor served one splendid purpose: He cured France permanently of the "Napoleon idea" that had broken out violently at intervals for more than fifty years.

Louis was the son of the first Napoleon's brother, Louis, king of Holland, and of Hortense, daughter of the Empress Josephine by her first marriage. He was born in 1808. After the fall of the empire, Hortense had fled with her son to Switzerland, where he had received a military education.

In 1836 Louis conspired to win back for himself his uncle's former dominions. For this he was arrested and, without trial, was packed off to the United States. He lived here for a year or so, and is said to have made his home for a time in the New Jersey suburbs. He went later to Europe and in 1840 joined a new conspiracy against the French government.

He crossed from England to Bologne, and as he stepped ashore a huge eagle (emblem of the Napoleons) swooped down from the skies and perched upon his head. This was regarded as an omen of victory until it was learned that the eagle was a tame one which had been trained to eat daily a piece of meat from his master's hat. The trick failed. Not a single city rose to welcome the young aspirant. Instead, the government condemned him to life imprisonment, and he spent the next six years in jail. In 1846 he escaped and succeeded in reaching England.

But in 1848 France revolted, overthrowing its first "citizen king," Louis Philippe, and declared a republic. The "Napoleon idea" cropped out once more. Louis was allowed to come back, and was elected to the assembly. In December of the same year he was elected president and took a solemn oath to preserve and defend the republic. By way of fulfilling his oath he put his personal adherents in the high offices and so successfully pulled wires that on December 2, 1851, he was able to accomplish the famous "coup d'etat." In other words, he put an end to constitutional government, overruled the Parisians with his troops, dissolved the assembly, had himself made practical dictator, and shot down such malcontents as objected to the new order of things. A year later the empire was re-established, with Louis as emperor under the title of Napoleon III.

Realizing that he had his uncle's great reputation to live up to, the new emperor at once entered on a military career. Russia, in the Crimea, had long menaced Turkey. It was to the interest of the western European powers that Turkey remain intact and that Russia's growing power be checked. So when (because of the invasion of the Danube provinces by a Russian army) Turkey in 1853 declared war, France, England and Sardinia joined forces with her against Russia, and the Crimean war began. Napoleon III was its leading spirit.

Sebastopol, on the Black sea, was Russia's strongest Crimean fortress. The allies landed a large army thirty miles to the north in September, 1854, beat the Russians in a fierce battle on the banks of the Alma and laid siege to the stronghold. At Balaklava and later at Inkermann they won two more decisive victories against a superior Russian force, and at last captured Sebastopol itself, ending the war and, incidentally, enhancing Louis Napoleon's fame.

"Give France a war every four years and the people will be content!" was the emperor's maxim, and he proceeded to put it into effect in 1859 by joining King Victor Emmanuel of Sardinia in a victorious campaign against Austria, both sovereigns taking the field in person and dividing the profits. Two years later Napoleon joined with England and Spain in an expedition against Mexico to punish that country for injuries inflicted on French, English and Spanish subjects. Suspecting the French monarch of duplicity, England and Spain withdrew from the alliance, leaving him to play the game alone. His general, Bazaine, conquered Mexico, and Napoleon made Archduke Maximilian of Austria its emperor, backing the latter's authority with French troops. Later he withdrew these troops, and Maximilian was deposed and executed.

All this deepened the distrust Europe was beginning to feel for Napoleon the Little. In 1866 Austria and Prussia went to war with each other. Napoleon demanded a slice of territory from the victorious Prussians as the price of non-interference. This led to ill-feeling that was to culminate in 1870 in the Franco-Prussian war. This latter war left France temporarily crushed and Napoleon the Little without a throne. He fled to England, where (1875) he died in exile, his only son being killed soon after by Zulus.

So ended the Napoleonic dynasty and the life of the man who had crawled into power by the help of a name he was unworthy to bear.

DAIRY THE DAIRY

DAIRYMEN CHANGE VIEWS ON FEEDS

Dairymen now favor moderate protein feeding, says E. J. Perry, New Jersey state extension specialist in dairying. Mr. Perry reports that a number of the leading dairymen have found that rations containing too much protein are likely to cause udder troubles and sometimes breeding difficulties.

The practice among the most successful dairymen is to get a considerable part of the protein needed in the ration from alfalfa, clover, soy bean or other legume hay. With hay of this nature a grain mixture containing 16 to 18 per cent total crude protein has given excellent results. When corn stover, timothy or other hay low in protein is used, the practice is to furnish the animals with a grain mixture containing 24 per cent total crude protein.

Experience has shown, says the specialist, that variety is helpful in keeping dairy cattle in good condition and in their highest production. The old two-grain mixtures are being superseded by feeds composed of four or more kinds of grains. Biochemists report that where a variety of grains is used, the animals are more likely to get the different vitamins and other constituents needed by the animals.

Observation of thousands of dairy animals on farms and under tests at experiment stations has shown that no set rules can be given controlling the quantity of roughage and grains needed by individual animals. The needs of various cows differ according to breed, weight, production, temperament and season. By weighing both the milk given by the animal and the feed supplied to her, the leading dairymen experiment until it is found what amount of feedstuffs cause the animal to give the largest amount of milk. To assist dairymen in solving feeding and other dairy problems, the college of agriculture maintains a staff of experts whose assistance is furnished free.

Dry Cows Require Good Feeding and Long Rest

If dry cows are to produce well during the coming lactation period it is necessary that they receive proper feed while they are dry. Dry cows should not be fattened, but they should receive sufficient feed so that they become sleek and vigorous in appearance. When cows are bred for high milk production, they have the tendency to use up some of their body tissues in producing milk.

In order to prepare cows for their next period of lactation they deserve a rest period of six weeks. During this time they should receive feeds that will tend to develop their bodies and make up for any deficiencies that developed during the time when they were producing milk. When this policy is adopted in handling dry cows, the rest period can be put to profitable use.

Commercial Mixed Feeds of Several Ingredients

Commercial mixed feeds usually contain a wide variety of ingredients obtained from several different plants. These feeds are especially convenient for the small dairyman who must buy most of his concentrates or who finds difficulty in getting the ingredients for mixing a good ration at home. They may be mixed with ground corn, barley or oats to good advantage, the proportions depending on the amount of protein in the commercial feed. Each feeder must exercise his judgment in this regard. The most important point to consider in buying a commercial feed is the reliability of the manufacturer.

Dairy Notes

Alfalfa develops healthy growth in young stock.

Separators do not operate efficiently if the bowl is not properly balanced.

The greatest loss to the dairy co-keeper is caused by improper feeding.

Protect a cow from cold drafts for a few days after calving, as her vitality is low.

Get ready for winter. Production is bound to fall off in winter unless the cows are comfortable.

New alfalfa hay is very palatable and the cows will eat it with a relish even if the pasture is in fair condition.

The richer the cream, the easier it is to churn. But have it fairly cool—about 70 degrees—or else you'll lose a good deal of butter.

The program on every farm should provide for the growing of all or most of the dairy herd, as this is necessary to insure the most profits.

The more skim milk used to flush the bowl, the thinner will be the cream. Therefore, always use the same amount. Always use skim milk and not water for flushing the bowl.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Do Women Read Advertisements?

Do you? Do you clip recipes from the fascinating messages that advertise a new salad oil, a new frying fat, a new cake flour? Do you think twice about your skin, those wrinkles at the corners of your eyes, your tell-tale past-thirty neck because of beauty ads that bring romance about happiness, love and youth?

In planning advertisements, the question is often asked, "Do women read advertisements?" The experienced advertiser answers, "Yes—if they are interesting and instructive to read."

This is the spirit of the best modern advertising. More and more, the ideal is to show you definitely how a new product can work to your well-being, your pleasure in life, your greater happiness. By reading advertisements, you can be a better housewife, a more efficient home manager, a shrewd and thrifty buyer. The advertising pages of this newspaper contain information that is valuable and important. If you do not read advertisements, join the large army of women who do, in order to know the best things to buy for yourself, your children and your home.

Reading advertising regularly is keeping up with the times in the most economical way

IDLE ACRES A SOURCE OF INCOME

A WISCONSIN man, as reported in the St. Paul Pioneer Press, takes the stand that a substantial source of income is being neglected on some Wisconsin farms, and one may add, on some Minnesota farms as well.

Idle land, especially on pioneer farms, can be made to produce a profitable forest crop pending its development for agriculture, stated Raphael Zon, director of the Federal lake states forest station, when attending the short course in timberland management at the University of Wisconsin.

Properly handled, this land will yield an annual income in ties, pulpwood and cordwood, as well as saw lumber.

The woodlot as a source of income has been too long overlooked by farmers, Zon contends. Even its possibilities as a source of material need on the farm are seldom realized or put to their full advantage.

A survey of 141 Northern Minnesota farms indicates that the average cash receipts from forest products amount to $217, nearly as much as the crop receipts. These products consisted largely of posts and ties with some poles and cordwood.

"Farmers should be vitally interested in the way in which our forest and lumber problems are worked out. In the aggregate, they constitute the largest group of users of lumber and the products made from wood. They are also the largest producers of wood. A large portion of forest products is supplied to the market from farm woodlots," Mr. Zon pointed out.

Zon feels that Wisconsin is turning a new leaf in forest conservation. Although the state has for a long time lagged in the protecting and upbuilding of its forests, it is now awakening to its obligation. The permanent maintenance of the wood using industries now active in Wisconsin is, he said, a matter of great importance in the welfare of every citizen in the state.

ALTHOUGH Brainerd may not have its streets decorated in Christmas colors and electric lights as Minneapolis and Montevideo and other cities are revealing, nevertheless we have the Christmas windows of the stores resplendent and gay and offering every inducement to buy something.

As mentioned by the Duluth Herald window dressing for show windows has come to be one of the fine arts. The merchant naturally is thinking of profit, but that is not the only thing he thinks about when he plans his attractive front. He wants to have a compelling and artistic display. He racks his memory for something new to draw the crowd. He enjoys beauty as much as any one.

One dealer decides that his windows shall be filled with the best merchandise, showing class and dignity, appealing to the practical. Another decides on artistic simplicity with lights and fancy touches. The next one, who may be historically minded, shows a historic tableau of old times, while his neighbor undertakes a fairyland revue.

Coupled with his window display, the progressive merchant carries his newspaper advertising, an appeal which is read in the home and deliberated over by the family planning its purchases for the Yuletide. This appeal is of the most importance. The advertisements are scanned for their suggestions and the prices quoted enable all to do their shopping in advance and to meet the budget self-imposed.

HARD COAL REVIVAL SOUGHT

THE DISPATCH notices that a committee organized in the hard coal fields to devise means of rehabilitating the hard coal market will consider various plans at a meeting at Wilkes Barre, December 12.

The advent of oil as a fuel, used by railways and steamships, and to heat our homes, has been a disturbing factor in the hard coal market. Strikes in the hard and soft coal fields have at times shaken the source of supply of black diamonds.

One of the best ways to rehabilitate the industry is a comprehensive campaign of advertising carried on in the daily press. The oil burner men advertise extensively in pushing their product and the hard coal men may find it necessary to advertise their product.

THE annual convention of the American Road Builders association, to be held this year in Cleveland, January 9 to 12, will be the largest gathering ever held by the organization. It is twenty-five years ago that the association was organized and a Minnesota man, Commissioner C. M. Babcock, will have the honor of presiding at the silver anniversary. Mr. Babcock was elected president at the last convention in Chicago.

CHRISTMAS at times carried tragedy in its wake. One reads of Andrew C. Foster of North Pelham, N. Y., who remonstrated in his home and took his wife to task because her Christmas list outran the size of his purse. Next morning he found his wife dead on the kitchen floor with the gas jets of the range wide open.

DAIRYMEN CHANGE VIEWS ON FEEDS

Dairymen now favor moderate protein feeding, says E. J. Perry, New Jersey state extension specialist in dairying. Mr. Perry reports that a number of the leading dairymen have found that rations containing too much protein are likely to cause undue troubles and sometimes breeding difficulties.

The practice among the most successful dairymen is to get a considerable part of the protein needed in the ration from alfalfa, clover, soy bean or other legume hay. With hay of this nature a grain mixture containing 16 to 18 per cent total crude protein has given excellent results. When corn stover, timothy or other hay low in protein is used, the practice is to furnish the animals with a grain mixture containing 24 per cent total crude protein.

Experience has shown, says the specialist, that variety is helpful in keeping dairy cattle in good condition and in their highest production. The old two-grain mixtures are being superseded by feeds composed of four or more kinds of grains. Biochemists report that where a variety of grains is used, the animals are more likely to get the different vitamins and other constituents needed by the animals.

Observation of thousands of dairy animals on farms and under tests at experiment stations has shown that no set rules can be given controlling the quantity of roughage and grains needed by individual animals. The needs of various cows differ according to breed, weight, production, temperament and season. By weighing both the milk given by the animal and the feed supplied to her, the leading dairymen experiment until it is found what amount of feedstuffs cause the animal to give the largest amount of milk. To assist dairymen in solving feeding and other dairy problems, the college of agriculture maintains a staff of experts whose assistance is furnished free.

If dry cows are to produce well during the coming lactation period it is necessary that they receive proper feed while they are dry. Dry cows should not be fattened, but they should receive sufficient feed so that they become sleek and vigorous in appearance. When cows are bred for high milk production, they have the tendency to use up some of their body tissues in producing milk.

In order to prepare cows for their next period of lactation they deserve a rest period of six weeks. During this time they should receive feeds that will tend to develop their bodies and make up for any deficiencies that developed during the time when they were producing milk. When this policy is adopted in handling dry cows, the rest period can be put to profitable use.

Commercial Mixed Feeds of Several Ingredients

Commercial mixed feeds usually contain a wide variety of ingredients obtained from several different plants. These feeds are especially convenient for the small dairyman who must buy most of his concentrates or who finds difficulty in getting the ingredients for mixing a good ration at home. They may be mixed with ground corn, barley or oats to good advantage, the proportions depending on the amount of protein in the commercial feed. Each feeder must exercise his judgment in this regard. The most important point to consider in buying a commercial feed is the reliability of the manufacturer.

Dairy Notes

Alfalfa develops healthy growth in young stock.

Separators do not operate efficiently if the bowl is not properly balanced.

The greatest loss to the dairy cow-keeper is caused by improper feeding.

Protect a cow from cold drafts for a few days after calving, as her vitality is low.

Get ready for winter. Production is bound to fall off in winter unless the cows are comfortable.

New alfalfa hay is very palatable and the cows will eat it with a relish even if the pasture is in fair condition.

The richer the cream, the easier it is to churn. But have it fairly cool—about 70 degrees—or else you'll lose a good deal of butter.

The program on every farm should provide for the growing of all or most of the dairy herd, as this is necessary to insure the most profits.

The more skim milk used to flush the bowl, the thinner will be the cream. Therefore, always use the same amount. Always use skim milk and not water for flushing the bowl.

Horseshoe Falls Cut Back

The larger of the two cataracts at Niagara, Horseshoe falls, is receding at the rate of about five feet a year, says Nature Magazine. The travel of the American falls is much slower—only a few inches a year. The time the cataract has taken to cut its way back to its present site has been much discussed among geologists, whose estimates vary from 7,000 to 70,000 years.

Radio Has a Coat of Arms

The B. B. C. (British Broadcasting company), which has a monopoly of radio broadcasting in Great Britain, has decided that it ought to have a coat of arms, and Garter King at Arms has allotted to it, by way of a crest, the design of a lion playing with a thunderbolt.—London Opinion.

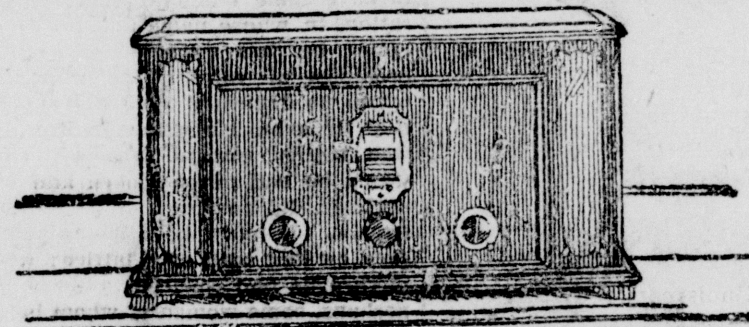

"The marvelous clarity of tone in the Bosch Radio gives it a decided value over every other instrument now on the market. What impressed me more than anything else was the fact that the tones were so perfect as to give the impression that I was in the same room with the artist instead of miles away. The Bosch Radio also has an advantage in that there is an utter absence of unharmonious sounds so characteristic in other instruments I have heard."

Do Women Read Advertisements?

Do you? Do you clip recipes from the fascinating messages that advertise a new salad oil, a new frying fat, a new cake flour? Do you think twice about your skin, those wrinkles at the corners of your eyes, your tell-tale past-thirty neck because of beauty ads that bring romance about happiness, love and youth?

In planning advertisements, the question is often asked, "Do women read advertisements?" The experienced advertiser answers, "Yes—if they are interesting and instructive to read."

This is the spirit of the best modern advertising. More and more, the ideal is to show you definitely how a new product can work to your well-being, your pleasure in life, your greater happiness. By reading advertisements, you can be a better housewife, a more efficient home manager, a shrewd and thrifty buyer. The advertising pages of this newspaper contain information that is valuable and important. If you do not read advertisements, join the large army of women who do, in order to know the best things to buy for yourself, your children and your home.

Reading advertising regularly is keeping up with the times in the most economical way

ILLINOIS BOXING BODY FACING STORM OF CRITICISM

CHAIRMAN RIGHEIMER HAS RESIGNED

14-SECOND COUNT GIVEN TUNNEY UNHEARD OF ELSEWHERE

WAS STRICTLY LEGAL AND CORRECT IN ILLINOIS BOXING RULES

By CLARK B. KELSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Dec. 12. — Criticism of the Illinois Boxing Commission by fighters, managers, sports experts and the public, particularly in regard to decisions in championship fights, was seen by observers today in the resignation of John C. Righeimer as chairman of the commission.

The 14-second count given Gene Tunney in his fight with Jack Dempsey last September—strictly legal and correct under the rules of the Illinois commission but unheard of elsewhere—brought down upon the commission and upon Righeimer as chairman a collection of quips and criticism that must have been hard to bear, friends of the chairman pointed out.

Righeimer gave as his official reason for resigning the necessity of taking his wife to another climate for her health.

Righeimer had been in office a little more than a year. His predecessor, O. W. Huncke, resigned when criticism of the commission became bitter after several championship fights.

Paul Prehn, wrestling coach at the University of Illinois and senior member of the boxing commission, if Righeimer's resignation is accepted, was believed likely to become chairman.

The 14-second count given Tunney was explained under a rule of the Illinois commission that when a fighter is knocked down, the count does not begin until his opponent has retired to a neutral corner. Dempsey did not reach the neutral corner for four seconds after Tunney hit the canvas, it was contended.

That, however, was the last of a series of unusual championship affairs.

The first big fight here—in which Sammy Mandell was awarded the championship over Rocky Kansas—caused an uproar. Many at the ringside felt Kansas earned no worse than a draw.

Some time later Charley Phil Rosenberg, scheduled to defend his bantamweight title against Bud Taylor, refused to put up his forfeit, until he learned the name of the referee. Huncke called the fight off and awarded the championship to Taylor.

There were reports that gunmen were to be at the ringside to defend the interests of certain gamblers.

A short time after the Rosenberg affair, Huncke submitted his resignation.

The middleweight championship fight, in which Mickey Walker wrested the title from the late Tiger Flowers also attracted attention. Referee Benny Yanger awarded the decision to Walker, and with it the championship.

Sports writers and spectators almost unanimously criticized the decision.

HERB JOESTING TO BE MARRIED IN DECEMBER

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—Sometime, somewhere Herb Joesting, football player of all-American fame, will be married to Miss Lora E. Davidson before December 15.

And as a result of this information imparted by the Minnesota full-back, an inquisitive populace will be kept "in the dark," which is as it has been since the public became aware of the engagement last Friday when Joesting obtained a license to marry Miss Davidson, also a student at the University of Minnesota.

Saturday night it was common gossip that the two were secretly married here.

Joesting was in his home town, Owatonna, Minn., Sunday and admitted that the marriage will take place before his departure for San Francisco where he will play in the east-west football game.

It is understood it will be a honeymoon trip for Herb and his bride-to-be.

The personalities attending the major league meetings in New York this week are more interesting, to me, than the baseball business to be transacted. The business can be attended to in comparatively short order, but the personalities present are worthy of considerable attention.

It is difficult to imagine this year's meetings without Ban Johnson. The brave old stormy petrel of baseball was the most colorful of all the figures moving through the routine of these annual sessions.

I have a lasting picture of Ban's last appearance at a baseball meeting in New York. He who once had been "Czar" of the pastime sat alone in a darkened, and, with all due respect to the hostelry, dingy bedroom, waiting for the American League Club owners to fire him.

The blinds in that depressing bedroom where Ban sat were drawn, but the lights were not lit. Johnson sat in a semi-darkness, that the watering of his eyes might not be betrayed. His gestures were those of a broken old man. His speech was the speech of a fighter.

He wouldn't resign! Not he! The Johnson of 1906 spoke. But it was he Johnson of 1927 with whom the American League magnates in the room down the corridor were dealing.

New York, Dec. 12.—The answer of the major leagues to the challenge of the minors over the unsatisfactory draft rule now in effect is the one serious problem confronting baseball owners, officials and managers, gathered here today for the annual winter meetings.

Aside from the nettlesome affair of the draft, smiles of contentment were in order on the familiar faces of the baseball men who came drifting into town to join the buzzing, hand-shaking, back-slapping groups in the lobbies of the Waldorf, the Belmont and the Roosevelt.

The steering committee of the two leagues—which only a few seasons ago was called into action to chart a course in the troublesome times of the Landis-Johnson feud—went into a somewhat superfluous session today. There seemed to be smooth sailing ahead as far as any differences between the two major circuits was concerned.

The National League has its meeting Tuesday, the American League on Wednesday and there will be a joint meeting Thursday.

Some of the matters which will be discussed, without likelihood of any serious disagreement are:

1. Establishment of a "disabled list" for players who are hors de combat for 60 playing days or more.

Like small bad boys playing tick-tack on the window when their elders are in conference, the minor league baseball folk will be on the outskirts, tossing in audible hints about this business of the draft.

Five minor league clubs announced at all as they would refuse to allow any more of their players to be drafted.

Other clubs joined in complaining that they were being constantly drained of all their good baseball material through an unfair draft rule.

The reply of the major league club owners is, of course, they the minor leagues brought the trouble upon their own heads through exorbitant demands which sent the ivory market soaring.

"I desire to carry out as far as possible an idea I have long entertained of forming a collection, in pairs or otherwise, of all the uncivilized races in existence, and my present object is to ask you kindly to render me what assistance is in your power to acquire any specimens of these uncivilized peoples."

"With this object in view I should be glad to receive from you descriptions of as many such specimens as you could obtain and photographs as far as possible, even if it is necessary to send an agent into the interior for the purpose."

"The remuneration of these people in addition to their board and traveling expense is usually nominal. I shall see that they are presented with fancy articles such as are always acceptable and small allowance monthly."

"If in any case a group of three to six or even ten would be especially novel I should probably take them, but I must study economy inasmuch as I propose to add this 'congress of nations' to the other attractions of our great show without extra charge."

"If interpreters should be absolutely necessary please inform me what would be the cost, which must be moderate."

Willing to Pay.

"For yourself, I should be glad to reimburse you for any proper outlay and to give you a reasonable compensation for the trouble which you may take in this matter."

"If you should meet with any living animals, or reptiles, freaks of nature, or in any sense rare or unusual, I should be glad to receive and to refund to you the cost of a photograph and full description of the same, but inanimate objects I do not desire. As it is my wish to get at least a portion of this collection together by January or February, 1883, I will thank you to favor me with as early a reply as convenient."

Whales Nearly Extinct, State Bureau Warns

Hoquiam, Wash.—Solemn warning is given by the state department of fisheries that if the killing of north Pacific whales continues at the present rate, within a few years the earth's largest animal will be extinct.

Each year whaling ships, equipped with the latest improved weapons and appliances, search the Arctic for these denizens of the deep. The industry produces big revenue and unless an international agreement limits or suspends for a period of years the hunting of whales, nothing will stop the destruction.

This season the catch of whales from the Alaskan coast stations is large and it is reported the mammals are easily taken. However, it is reported that every year the whales grow smaller, which, say authorities on the subject, is evidence that continued hunting prevents the full development of the huge species and only the undersized ones are victims.

Looking for Freaks. "My aim is to exhibit to the American public not only human beings of different races but also when practicable those who possess extraordinary peculiarities, such as giants, dwarfs, singular disfigurements . . . dexterity in the use of weapons, dancing, singing, juggling, unusual strength or agility, etc.

"With this object in view I should be glad to receive from you descriptions of as many such specimens as you could obtain and photographs as far as possible, even if it is necessary to send an agent into the interior for the purpose.

"The remuneration of these people in addition to their board and traveling expense is usually nominal. I shall see that they are presented with fancy articles such as are always acceptable and small allowance monthly.

"If in any case a group of three to six or even ten would be especially novel I should probably take them, but I must study economy inasmuch as I propose to add this 'congress of nations' to the other attractions of our great show without extra charge.

"If interpreters should be absolutely necessary please inform me what would be the cost, which must be moderate.

Willing to Pay.

"For yourself, I should be glad to reimburse you for any proper outlay and to give you a reasonable compensation for the trouble which you may take in this matter.

"If you should meet with any living animals, or reptiles, freaks of nature, or in any sense rare or unusual, I should be glad to receive and to refund to you the cost of a photograph and full description of the same, but inanimate objects I do not desire. As it is my wish to get at least a portion of this collection together by January or February, 1883, I will thank you to favor me with as early a reply as convenient."

Whales Nearly Extinct, State Bureau Warns

Hoquiam, Wash.—Solemn warning is given by the state department of fisheries that if the killing of north Pacific whales continues at the present rate, within a few years the earth's largest animal will be extinct.

Each year whaling ships, equipped with the latest improved weapons and appliances, search the Arctic for those denizens of the deep. The industry produces big revenue and unless an international agreement limits or suspends for a period of years the hunting of whales, nothing will stop the destruction.

This season the catch of whales from the Alaskan coast stations is large and it is reported the mammals are easily taken. However, it is reported that every year the whales grow smaller, which, say authorities on the subject, is evidence that continued hunting prevents the full development of the huge species and only the undersized ones are victims.

JUSTICE AT LAST

It was the usual domestic storm. Oh, dear! oh, dear!" moaned wifely in tears. "I wish I'd taken poor mother's advice, and never married you!" Hubby, the strong, silent man, swung round on her quickly, and at last found voice.

"Did your mother try to stop your marrying me?" he demanded.

Wifely nodded violently.

A look of deep remorse crossed hubby's face.

"Great Scott," he cried in broken tones, "how I wronged that woman?"

British Stevedore Eats 20 Dinners on Wager

London.—Twenty workmen's dinners of steak pie and vegetables, amounting in all to six pounds of meat, three pounds of fat, three pounds of pie crust, eighteen pounds of vegetables and eight pounds of greens was the modest meal consumed for a wager by Henry Bullion, a Deptford stevedore.

The twelfth dinner took the edge off his appetite, but after drinking a glass of beer after the fourteenth he was able to chew his way manfully to the end.

Aviation Movements

The Army Air corps says that airplanes can fly upside down for several miles, the exact number depending upon the make of the plane. Very few airplanes can fly in this position without losing altitude. The aviator is enabled to determine the position of his plane by means of a "turn and bank" indicator.

The male blossom appears before the cucumber is formed. The female blossom appears at the same time the cucumber is formed. No More Piles

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds because it relieves this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has a wonderful record for quick, safe and lasting relief to Pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. H. P. INDIAN WOMAN SAVES LIFE OF AN OLD PROSPECTOR

JOHN KOLES WAS LOST AT MYSTERY LAKE, MANITOBA

DELIRIOUS AND PARTLY FROZEN IN THE ICY TEMPERATURE

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 12.—(UP)—Only the heroic efforts of an Indian woman saved the life of John Koles, prospector of the Mystery Lake, Manitoba, district, who, lost in the northland, was discovered delirious and partially frozen in the icy, sub-zero temperature.

While out prospecting Koles became lost and, in order to ascertain his bearings, he took off his mackinaw, left it lying beside his axe, and wandered off, intending to return in a few minutes. Apparently he wandered too far, and darkness overtook him before he got back to where he had left his coat.

Then followed a night of misery, as he wandered about in the 30-below zero temperature. Despite his strenuous efforts to keep moving, the biting cold eventually overcame him and he collapsed, unconscious. The next morning, the Indian woman, out setting snares, came upon the staggering tracks of a man. Sensing something wrong, she followed the twisting trail, and finally came upon Koles, badly frozen and delirious. Loading him on a toboggan, she pulled him to her tiny cabin, where she treated his frost bites with Indian remedies. It is expected he will recover, although it will be many weeks before he will again be able to face the icy weather of the northern region.

HOLDUP OF FARMERS AND MERCHANTS BANK NETTED FIVE OVER $20,000

Huron, S. D., Dec. 12.—(UP)—With three persons already convicted on charges of robbing the Farmers and Merchants bank here last June, Roy Shea was to go on trial in circuit court today for the same offense.

Patrick Hanley and T. P. Driscoll are now serving sentences of 11 years each in the state prison for the bank hold-up which netted five bandits more than $20,000 in cash and securities.

John Leroy Rogers, underworld character of the Twin Cities, was found guilty Sunday morning by a jury which deliberated more than 2 hours on the specific charge that he rebbed the bank of $10,359. He will be sentenced next Monday by Judge Alva E. Taylor.

Counsel for Rogers announced immediately after his trial that a new edition would be asked.

If the motion for a new trial is denied, a stay of execution of sentence will be asked to permit time for an appeal. William M. Nash, defense counsel, said.

The charge of which Rogers was convicted has been placed against Shea. A panel of 20 veniremen was sworn Saturday night.

INDIAN WOMAN SAVES LIFE OF AN OLD PROSPECTOR

JOHN KOLES WAS LOST AT MYSTERY LAKE, MANITOBA

DELIRIOUS AND PARTLY FROZEN IN THE ICY TEMPERATURE

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 12.—(UP)—Only the heroic efforts of an Indian woman saved the life of John Koles, prospector of the Mystery Lake, Manitoba, district, who, lost in the northland, was discovered delirious and partially frozen in the icy, sub-zero temperature.

While out prospecting Koles became lost and, in order to ascertain his bearings, he took off his mackinaw, left it lying beside his axe, and wandered off, intending to return in a few minutes. Apparently he wandered too far, and darkness overtook him before he got back to where he had left his coat.

Then followed a night of misery, as he wandered about in the 30-below zero temperature. Despite his strenuous efforts to keep moving, the biting cold eventually overcame him and he collapsed, unconscious. The next morning, the Indian woman, out setting snares, came upon the staggering tracks of a man. Sensing something wrong, she followed the twisting trail, and finally came upon Koles, badly frozen and delirious. Loading him on a toboggan, she pulled him to her tiny cabin, where she treated his frost bites with Indian remedies. It is expected he will recover, although it will be many weeks before he will again be able to face the icy weather of the northern region.

HOLDUP OF FARMERS AND MERCHANTS BANK NETTED FIVE OVER $20,000

Huron, S. D., Dec. 12.—(UP)—With three persons already convicted on charges of robbing the Farmers and Merchants bank here last June, Roy Shea was to go on trial in circuit court today for the same offense.

Patrick Hanley and T. P. Driscoll are now serving sentences of 11 years each in the state prison for the bank holdup which netted five bandits more than $20,000 in cash and securities.

John Leroy Rogers, underworld character of the Twin Cities, was found guilty Sunday morning by a jury which deliberated more than 12 hours on the specific charge that he robbed the bank of $10,359. He will be sentenced next Monday by Judge Alva E. Taylor.

Counsel for Rogers announced immediately after his trial that a new edition would be asked.

If the motion for a new trial is denied, a stay of execution of sentence will be asked to permit time for an appeal, William M. Nash, defense counsel, said.

The charge of which Rogers was convicted has been placed against Shea. A panel of 20 veniremen was sworn Saturday night.

Infancy of Music

It is thought that the first musical instrument was made far back in the Stone age when some one made a simple bow and found that by twanging the string it would make a sound. Then later some one conceived the idea of adding other shorter strings to make different sounds. This was the beginning of the harp. The drum was first made when sections of the hide of animals were stretched across hollow logs.

"In the past ten years the Vick Company has spent more than six million dollars in its educational program. It is using 1900 leading newspapers, of which The Daily Dispatch is one, to tell their thirty-five million subscribers the story of how colds can be treated without dosing, and also how to avoid a big cold by stopping a little one. In addition to this, foreign language papers, with a circulation of 1,000,000 and farm papers having 16,000,000 readers, are used. It is impossible to estimate the number who learn of Vicks VapoRub from billboards, window displays, booklets, samples and other dealer helps.

NORTH PRAIRIE

We are inclined to change the name of North Prairie to North Pole according to the weather we are having. News becomes ancient history before it gets to the paper, for the roads are snowbound and even our reliable mail carrier, Lester Bratt, had to miss a day. It is probably the only day in five years though, so we consider that he has a remarkable record.

Radio and telephone are a boon to the rural communities now. Sam Harris and Stephen Tougas are among those who have new radios this winter.

Amos Babcock has purchased a Ford car.

There were no services at the Union church Sunday because of bad roads.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Peterson, Mrs. Amelia Peterson, Earl Young, Mrs. A. Young and daughters Irene and Laura visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Peterson Sunday.

Mrs. Ole Anderson and Mrs. Ben Grieson called on Mrs. Amos Babcock on Tuesday of last week.

The regular monthly meeting of the P. T. A. was omitted for December because of the Christmas program which will be given on Friday evening, Dec. 23.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Peterson called on Mr. and Mrs. Amos Babcock on Tuesday evening.

"In the past ten years the Vick Company has spent more than six million dollars in its educational program. It is using 1900 leading newspapers, of which The Daily Dispatch is one, to tell their thirty-five million subscribers the story of how colds can be treated without dosing, and also how to avoid a big cold by stopping a little one. In addition to this, foreign language papers, with a circulation of 1,000,000 and farm papers having 15,000,000 readers, are used. It is impossible to estimate the number who learn of Vicks VapoRub from billboards, window displays, booklets, samples and other dealer helps.

Three Happy Fools

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

"YOU don't say," Miss Lexy ex-claimed, rising so quickly she literally rained scissors, thread and emery-bag upon the carpet. "Did you ever in all your life? I shoudly never did."

"No, sir," said the Widow Lane chuckling. "That Copley boy has run away with Damaris, one of the dancin' Reeves twins, shore enough. I just stopped by to tell his mother. The Reeves girl's stepfather is that cut up he cried in the telling. Said he got the blame, same as for the stage-dancin', and him as innocent as a babe in born."

"Lying, as usual," Miss Lexy commented. "The twins would be quietly at home if he hadn't fooled away the nice money Tom Reeves, poor fellow left his widow, she's one of those smart fools—I tried to warn her against Jack Ross, being a church-sister, but he paid no attention. So she married him and he used all her money, and it was shufal hard on Damaris and Doris. Course they took to dancin'. They had to do something for their living. I wish to patience Sid Copley had been born twins for the sake of Doris. Will she stay at home now or go back to dancin'?"

"Ain't heard tell—jit. Let you know when I do," Widow Lane said grumpily, whereat Miss Lexy countered, "Needn't trouble, I'll see this child in about half a jiffy—"

"What for?" the widow demanded. Miss Lexy already bonneted, nodded toward the door, with a "Come on." But outside, she slid through the side gate, almost running toward the short cut leading to the Ross home.

Slipping in ghost-wise, instinct guided her to Doris—who had found sanctuary in the playroom, where, in front of a big clouded mirror, she was bravely essaying a new step.

"I'm glad you—know," Doris told her. "Daddy wanted to tell you—but they don't want to. Mr. Ross was simply dreadful—talked about 'kidnaping.' We are not of age—won't be for a year. Says how he means to keep me here and save the cook's wages—"

"He can't," Miss Lexy cried.

Doris smiled wanly, gulped and replied: "But he can. Mother made him our guardian—I can't get work with out his consent. Besides—I can't get away—he has locked up my dancing clothes, my jewels—three silver dollars is all the money I have in the world. I'd had so little I couldn't get away to my empty-handed. So—I'll get my teeth and bear it for the year, rather than give him three parts of what I could earn—if free—"

"You're going to be free in short order," Miss Lexy interrupted. "Come with me right now. Time somebody took Mr. Jack Ross in hand—and I'm the person to do it—with a little help from the good Lord, and Tommy Woodley, the last under her breath."

"Come just as you are—fetch nothing but your maid," Miss Lexy ordered very low, setting her back against the door. She heard from the front Jack Ross laying down the law furiously to a weeping wife. Instantly she set her shoulder back and upon Doris' golden head nudged the girl into her own prim basket and walking in front of her went to the back door undiscovered. There she whispered: "Run you best to my house. You know the way. Here's the key. Lock up—light and open to nobody—until I come. Now—my hat and jacket, please."

Five minutes later she had gained the highway. The first passing motorist was glad to take her straight to the county town. There she divided an hour between the bank, the court house and the law office of Bryce & Woodley, whence she rode home in a rather extravagant car with Tommy Woodley at the wheel.

Tommy talked little but chuckled a lot on the way home. "Thinking over the case," he explained to Aunt Lexia. "Puzzle? Not a bit. There's several ways to win it—question is—which is best?"

Tommy was sudden—after the manner of youth. He stepped behind Doris and said, with the least note of treachery: "Honey, I've loved you nineteen years at least—since I saw you first, you know—so if only you can tolerate me it will be joy to look after you all the rest of our lives."

"But—Mr. Ross—my guardian?" Doris stammered.

"Mr. Ross knows his danger—prison if it were proved in court how he had fooled your father's estate, of which your mother had only the use but which he assumed to be hers in fee. But—we don't want to send him there—no blot on the family record if we can sidestep it."

"Is that really how it stands, Tommy?" said Doris wonderingly.

He smiled down at her, saying: "Say you'll marry me, darling—say it right now, do it right now. We can go get our license and find a parson in an hour at the longest. Aunt Lexia shall be bridesmaid and Judge Bryce best man. First thing after that, no time to vacate to Mr. Ross—tell him to go quickly while the going is good. That will leave nice quarters for Daddy and Sid—they love country living even as we love town atmosphere. You'll go with us, of course, Aunt Lexia."

"For a bid you do talk right down sensible," Miss Lexia said with a chuckle.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

Garibaldi

A STOCKY, bearded man was arrested on a charge of so-called treason. He was Giuseppe Garibaldi, son of a poor Italian fisherman, and himself a sailor by occupation. In 1834, when only twenty-seven, he joined the "Young Italy" society, was implicated in a plot to free his country from the Austrian yoke, and was condemned to death.

"This ends your career, my friend," remarked one consoling jailor.

"You are mistaken," retorted Garibaldi, coolly. "My destiny is not fulfilled. Italy's not yet free. I shall live."

He made good his words by escaping from prison. He found his way to South America, where he plunged at once into the warfare that convulsed that continent, and repeatedly won fame by his efforts in behalf of the weaker side. He was taken prisoner by the Brazilian government, escaped, eloped with a beautiful Creole, successively picked up a living as an anti-slavery agent, a ship broker and teacher of mathematics, organized an Italian legion and served as naval commander for Montevideo in the latter's war with Buenos Ayres. Then he returned to Italy and, raising a body of irregular troops, again harried the Austrians.

Italy was divided into a number of independent and semi-independent principalities, including a group of states under the direct temporal rule of the pope. But the northern part of the country was in Austria's hands, while nearly all of it was more or less under Austrian domination. Austria bullied and oppressed the hapless land cruelly. As a result, Mazzini and other patriots formed a horde of secret societies with the hope of freeing their downtrodden fatherland and joining its separate states into one strong union. In 1830, 1834 and at other times revolts sprang up, only to be crushed with an iron hand.

The Carbonari, "Young Italy" and similar patriotic leagues continued their efforts, and in 1848 Garibaldi and his fellow revolutionists captured Rome, forcing the pope to fly to Gaeta. They formed a republic in which Garibaldi and Mazzini were supreme. But Napoleon III (who had earlier pledged his support to the revolutionists) sent a French army to the pope's aid. Garibaldi gallantly held Rome against the stronger foe for thirty days, but was at last forced to evacuate the city. Again Garibaldi was forced to flee from Italy. He now came to New York, where he remained for over a year, working as a candle maker and living on Staten Island. Later he was captain of a Pacific merchantman. In 1854 he returned to Italy and bought a farm on the island of Capri, off the Sicilian coast. But he was not allowed to remain long in seclusion.

Charles Albert, king of Sardinia, had striven to shake off the Austrian yoke, but was bent in 1849, at Novara, heartbroken, he abdicated on the field of battle in favor of his son, Victor Emmanuel, duke of Savoy (grandfather of the present king of Italy), a man of simple tastes, who preferred mountaineering and hunting to the pomp of state. Italy was now at last free, but for Victor Emmanuel and Garibaldi it might still be in semi-slavery to foreign power. But in 1850 Victor Emmanuel, refusing Austria's command to disarm his little kingdom, made an alliance with Napoleon III. Together at Solferino, Magenta and elsewhere they inflicted terrible defeats on Austria, and won the war, the great province of Lombardy being ceded to Sardinia, while Victor Emmanuel, in payment, turned over his own ancestral duchy of Savoy to France. The tide had turned other principalities—Bologna, Tuscany, Parma, Modena and Rome (the last named being one of the "papal states")—annexed themselves to Sardinia. The pope promptly excommunicated everyone concerned in the reform.

Garibaldi left his seclusion and, with 1,000 "red-shirt men," invaded Sicily. In less than three months he had freed the island. He was acclaimed a hero on his return to Italy, but refused all gifts and honors and went quietly back to his farm. The freeing of Sicily and lower Italy by Garibaldi caused the fall of the king of Naples, an oppressor and foe to liberty and looted off more papal provinces. Thus by 1861 all Italy, with the exception of Venetia and the few remaining papal provinces, was a united kingdom under Victor Emmanuel's rule.

In 1866, when Prussia and Italy fought Austria, Venetia was ceded to Italy; and in 1870, when the Franco-Prussian war caused the withdrawal of French troops from Rome, Victor Emmanuel annexed the last of the papal states, guaranteeing spiritual independence to the pope and himself becoming first king of the free and united Italy.

Garibaldi, meantime, had won fresh fame by invading the Tyrol in the war of 1866, and had fought gallantly in the Franco-Prussian war. Still declining the office, ranks and honors tendered him, he returned to his island farm, where, crippled and broken in health, he died in 1882.

This man of the people was the central and most picturesque figure in the long struggle for Italian liberty, and was also the Nineteenth century's highest type of disinterested patriot.

Black Velvet Gown and Black Satin Headgear

Displaying the popular black velvet street dress with a black satin hat of original design. The gown features the long-bloused bodice with white vestee and sleeve puffs of lace. Black satin pumps with silver leather trimming complete the outfit.

Fringe Is Much Used

on Blouses This Season

Fringe is being used lavishly with many of the new blouses. On a charming evening gown of ruby crepe long fringe is put on in sections, breaking the monotony of straight lines. In an ensemble of blue crepe and cloth, the dress is made with bias folds in three shades, from the bodice to the hem line, and the coat, which is cut full length, has a collar of brown fur. An all-black evening gown is trimmed with a fringe in deep points and a soft girle is swathed about the hips, with deep slash ends at one side. A modest frock of dead black georgette has long, floating draperies, the somberness being relieved with one large aquamarine buckle. A dignified dinner frock of beige moire has two tiers of the silk on the skirt and a large choker of black tulle at one side. Rather startling is the combination of black and white—the skirt of black cloth, a white jersey striped in lavender and black, with a modish strap belt, and a long black coat with black fox collar.

Picture frocks are shown by most of the best couturiers and make an irresistible appeal. One contribution to this vogue is an afternoon gown of tulle chiffon on which are printed small flowers in pretty colors. The chiffon is arranged in floating panels and the bodice is finished with a quaintly draped fichu.

Velveteen Is Stressed for Girls' School Wear

The importance of velveteen in the wardrobe of the growing girl is attested by every autumn collection. From the time we are six to seven years old we start wearing 'em—those velveteen jackets borrowed from grown-up modes. The past summer many small girls wore them over crepe and cotton frocks, and for school wear they are being used extensively to top frocks of jersey, cashmere, tweed and wool crepe.

Frocks of checked wool, topped by such wraps in harmonizing tone, are delightful for the schoolgirl and have been worked out in many color combinations. Brown velveteen with plaided wool in beige and brown is only one of a group in which may be mentioned black-and-white checks completed by black velveteen jackets.

Wearing Long Sleeves in New Evening Gowns

Dinner dresses with long sleeves are frequent in winter styles. Chiffon, tulle and crepe and satin dresses frequently have fitted sleeves which make them suitable for bridge dresses as well as evening.

In many respects these long-sleeved dinner dresses resemble the silk dresses of summer with sleeves sewed in, and many an economical Parisian is adding sleeves, wherever possible, to her last summer's frock.

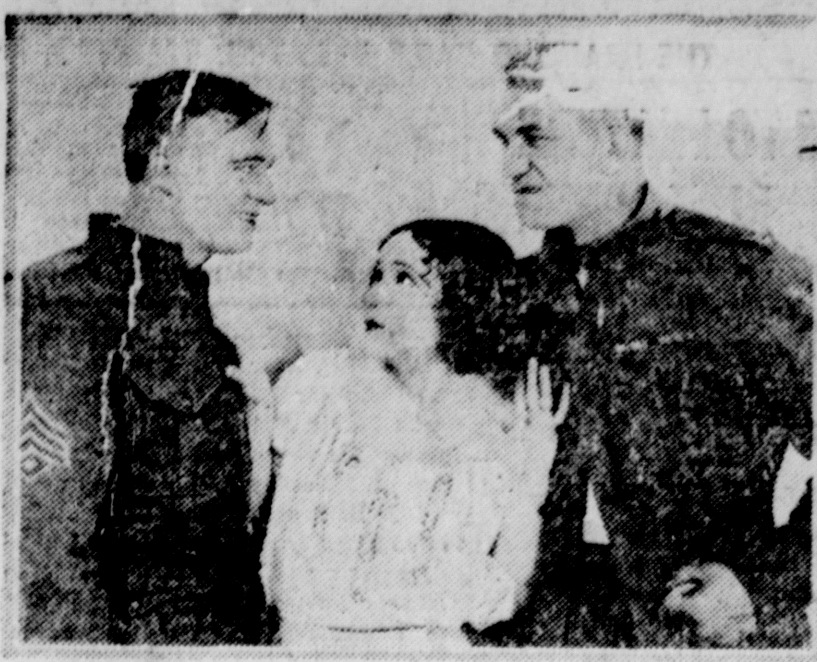

A change in color, a new belt or ornament and an old dress appears in fresh guise. It has been a long time since the leading dressmakers suggested anything so practical.

Dotted Challis House Dresses

If you are wondering whether your printed cotton and linen house dresses will be comfortably warm for fall and winter days, and realize that they will soon look too summery, get one or two challis ones. Polka dot challis, which was popular for house dresses a few years ago, is back again.

New Slipper Buckles

Smart opera pumps for fall wear have cut steel or bronze buckles that are very much larger than any seen for years.

Strong Language in Play Put Across on Screen by Clever Pantomime

It is being freely predicted that printed sub-titles will all but be eliminated from moving pictures before the present theatrical season ends, due to an innovation which Director Raoul Walsh has injected into the film version of "What Price Glory," which comes to Lyceum theatre for a four day's engagement Tuesday.

Strong Cast Supports Miss Talmadge—Picture Is Rife of Sophisticated Humor

In all her years of picture making, Constance Talmadge thinks the greatest comedy role of her life is in "Breakfast at Sunrise," now showing at the Lyceum theatre.

"Breakfast at Sunrise" is a story of French life and a strange marriage pact that develops so many complications it has the principals in the case in a maze to unravel it.

BOWL

for What Ails You

Three Happy Fools
By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

"YOU don't say," Miss Lexy exploded, rising so quickly she literally ruined scissors, thread and every-thing upon the carpet. "Did you ever in all your life? I shoudly never did."

"No, sir," said the Widow Lane chuckling. "That Copley boy has run away with Damaris, one of the dancin' Reeves twins, shore enough. I just stopped by to tell his mother. The Reeves girl's stepfather is that cut up he cried in the telling. Said he got the blame, same as for the stage-dancing, and him as innocent as a babe unborn."

"Lying, as usual," Miss Lexy commented. "The twins would be quietly at home if he hadn't fooled away the nice money Tom Reeves, poor fellow left his widow. She's one of those smart fools—I tried to warn her against Jack Ross, being a church-sister, but he paid no attention. So she married him and he used all her money, and it was sinful hard on Damaris and Doris. Course they took to dancin'. They had to do something for their living. I wish to patience Sid Copley had been born twins for the sake of Doris. Will she stay at home now or go back to dancin'?"

"Ah! heard tell—yit. Let you know when I do." Widow Lane said grumpily, whereat Miss Lexy countered, "Needn't trouble, I'll see that child in about half a jiffy—"

"What for?" the widow demanded.

Miss Lexy, already bonneted, nodded toward the door, with a "Come on." But outside, she slid through the side gate, almost running toward the short cut leading to the Ross home.

Slipping in ghost-wise, instinct guided her to Doris—who had found sanctuary in the playroom, where, in front of a big clouded mirror, she was bravely essaying a new step.

"I'm glad you know," Doris told her. "Daddy wanted to tell you, but they had to hurry so. Mr. Ross was simply dreadful—talked about 'kidnaping.' We are not of age—won't be for a year. Says how he means to keep me here and save the cook's wages—"

"He can't!" Miss Lexy cried.

Doris smiled wanly, gulped and replied: "But he can. Mother made him our guardian—I can't get work without his consent. Besides—I can't get away—he has locked up all my dancing clothes, my jewels—three silver dolars is all the money I have in the world. S'ed had so little I couldn't believe it. I'm going to the little band-it'll get my teeth and bear it for the year, rather than give him three parts of what I could earn if free—"

"You're going to be free in short order," Miss Lexy interrupted. "Come with me right now. Time somebody took Mr. Jack Ross in hand—and I'm the person to do it—with a little help from the good Lord, and Tommy Woodley, the best under her breath."

"Come just as you are—fetch nothing but your maids," Miss Lexy ordered very low, setting her back against the door. She heard from the front Jack Ross trying down the law furiously to the evening wife. Instantly she set her shining black hat upon Doris' golden head, nudged the girl into her own prim pecked and waiting in front of her, went to the back door undiscovered. There she whispered: "Run your best to my house.
You know the way. Here's the key.
Lock up—tight, and open to nobody—until I come. Now—my hat and jacket, please."

Five minutes later she had gained the highway. The first passing motorist was glad to take her straight to the county town. There she divided an hour between the bank, the courthouse and the law office of Bryce & Woodley, whence he rode home in a rather extravagant car with Tommy himself at the wheel.

Tommy talked little but chuckled a lot on the way home. "Thinking over the case," he explained to Aunt Lexia "Puzzle? Not a bit. There's several ways to win it—question is—which is best?"

Tommy was sudden—after the manner of youth. He stepped behind Doris and said, with the least touch of treachery: "Honey, I've loved you nineteen years at least—since I saw you first, you know—so if only you can tolerate me it will be joy to look after you all the rest of our lives."

"But—Mr. Ross—my guardian?"
Doris stammered.

"Mr. Ross knows his danger—prison if it were proved in court how he had fooled your father's estate, of which your mother had only life use, but which he assumed to be hers in fee. But—we don't want to send him there—no blot on the family record
if we can sidestep it."

"Is that really how it stands, Tommy?" said Doris wonderingly.

He smiled down at her, saying:
"Say you'll marry me, darling—say it right now, do it right now. We can go get our license and find a parson in an hour at the longest. Aunt Lexia shall be bridesmaid and Judge Bryce best man. First thing after that, no time to vacate to Mr. Ross—tell him to go quickly while the going is good.
That will leave nice quarters for Dam-ary and Sid—they love country living even as we love town atmosphere.
You'll go with us, of course, Aunt Lexia."

"For a had you do talk right down sensible," Miss Lexia said with a chuckle.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS
ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

Garibaldi
A STOCKY, bearded man was arrested on a charge of so-called treason. He was Giuseppe Garibaldi, son of a poor Italian fisherman, and himself a sailor by occupation. In 1834, when only twenty-seven, he joined the "Young Italy" society, was implicated in a plot to free his country from the Austrian yoke, and was condemned to death.

"This ends your career, my friend," remarked one consulatory jailor.

"You are mistaken," retorted Garibaldi, coolly. "My destiny is not fulfilled. Italy's not yet free. I shall live."

He made good his words by escaping from prison. He found his way to South America, where he plunged at once into the warfare that convulsed that continent, and repeatedly won fame by his efforts in behalf of the weaker side. He was taken prisoner by the Brazilian government, escaped, successively picked up a living as cuttle-man, ship broker and teacher of mathematics, organized an Italian legion and served as naval commander for Montevideo in the latter's war with Buenos Ayres. Then he returned to Italy and, raising a body of irregular troops,
again harried the Austrians.

Italy was divided into a number of independent and semi-independent principalities, including a group of states under the direct temporal rule of the pope. But the northern part of the country was in Austria's hands, while nearly all of it was more or less under Austrian domination. Austria bullied and oppressed the hapless land cruelly. As a result, Mazzini and other patriots formed a horde of secret societies with the hope of freeing their downtrodden fatherland and joining its separate states into one strong union. In 1830, 1834 and at other times revolts sprang up, only to be crushed with an iron hand.

The Carbonari, "Young Italy" and similar patriotic leagues continued their efforts, and in 1818 Garibaldi and his fellow revolutionists captured
Rome, forcing the pope to fly to Gaeta.
They formed a republic in which Garibaldi and Mazzini were supreme. But Napoleon III (who had earlier pledged his support to the revolutionists) sent a French army to the pope's aid. Garibaldi gallantly held Rome against the strenger force for thirty days, but was at last forced to evacuate the city.
Again Garibaldi was forced to flee from Italy. He now came to New York, where he remained for over a year,
working as a candle maker and living on Staten Island. Later he was captain of a Pacific merchantman.

In 1854 he returned to Italy and bought a farm on the island of Capri-ere, off the Sardinian coast. But he was not allowed to remain long in seclusion.

Charles Albert, king of Sardinia, had striven to shake off the Austrian yoke, but was beaten in 1849 at Novara.
Heartbroken, he abdicated on the field of battle in favor of his son, Victor Emmanuel, duke of Savoy (grandfather of the present king of Italy), a man of simple tastes, who preferred mountaineering and hunting to the pomp of state. Italy was now at last united. But for Victor Emmanuel and Garibaldi it might still be in semi-slavery to foreign power. But in 1859
Victor Emmanuel, refusing Austria's command to disarm his little kingdom, made an alliance with Napoleon III.
Together at Solferino, Magenta and elsewhere they inflicted terrible defeats on Austria, and won the war, the great province of Lombardy being ceded to Sardinia, while Victor Emmanuel, in payment, turned over his own ancestral duchy of Savoy to France. The tide had turned. Other principalities—Bologna, Tuscany, Parma, Modena and Rome (the last-named being one of the "papal states")—annexed themselves to Sardinia. The pope promptly excommunicated everyone concerned in the reforms.

Garibaldi left his seclusion and,
with 1,000 "red-shirt men," invaded Sicily. In less than three months he had freed the island. He was acclaimed a hero on his return to Italy, but refused all gifts and honors and went quietly back to his farm. The freeing of Sicily and lower Italy by Garibaldi caused the fall of the king of Naples, an oppressor and foe to liberty and lopped off more papal provinces. Thus by 1861 all Italy, with the exception of Venetia and the few remaining papal provinces, was a united kingdom under Victor Emmanuel's rule.

In 1866, when Prussia and Italy fought Austria, Venetia was ceded to Italy; and in 1870, when the Franco-Prussian war caused the withdrawal of French troops from Rome, Victor Emmanuel annexed the last of the papal states, guaranteeing spiritual independence to the pope and himself becoming first king of the free and united Italy.

Garibaldi, meantime, had won fresh fame by invading the Tyrol in the war of 1866, and had fought gallantly in the Franco-Prussian war. Still declining the office, ranks and honors tendered him, he returned to his island farm, where, crippled and broken in health, he died in 1882.

This man of the people was the central and most picturesque figure in the long struggle for Italian liberty, and was also the nineteenth century's highest type of disinterested patriot.

Black Velvet Gown and Black Satin Headgear

Displaying the popular black velvet street dress with a black satin hat of original design. The gown features the long-bloused bodice with white vestee and sleeve puffs of lace. Black satin pumps with silver leather trimming complete the outfit.

Fringe Is Much Used
on Blouses This Season

Fringe is being used lavishly with many of the new blouses. On a charming evening gown of ruby crepe long fringe is put on in sections, breaking the monotony of straight lines. In an ensemble of blue crepe and cloth, the dress is made with bias folds in three shades, from the bodice to the hem line, and the coat, which is cut full length, has a collar of brown fur. An all-black evening gown is trimmed with a fringe in deep points and a soft girle is swathed about the hips, with deep sash ends at one side. A modest frock of dead black georgette has long, floating draperies, the somberness being relieved with one large aquamarine buckle. A dignified dinner frock of beige moire has two tiers of the silk on the skirt and a large choir of black tulle at one side. Rather startling is the combination of black and white—the skirt of black cloth, a white jersey striped in lavender and black, with a modish strap belt, and a long black coat with black fox collar.

Picture frocks are shown by most of the best couturiers and make an irresistible appeal. One contribution to this vogue is an afternoon gown of tapi chiffon on which are printed small flowers in pretty colors. The chiffon is arranged in floating panels and the bodice is finished with a quaintly draped fichu.

Velveteen Is Stressed
for Girls' School Wear

The importance of velveteen in the wardrobe of the growing girl is attested by every autumn collection.
From the time we are six to seven years old we start wearing 'em—those velveteen jackets borrowed from grown-up modes. The past summer many small girls wore them over crepe and cotton frocks, and for school wear they are being used extensively to top frocks of jersey, cashmere, tweed and wool crepe.

Frocks of checked wool, topped by such wraps in harmonizing tone, are delightful for the schoolgirl and have been worked out in many color combinations. Brown velveteen with plaided wool in beige and brown is only one of a group in which may be mentioned black-and-white checks completed by black velveteen jackets.

Wearing Long Sleeves
in New Evening Gowns

Dinner dresses with long sleeves are frequent in winter styles. Chiffon, flat crepe and satin dresses frequently have fitted sleeves which make them suitable for bridge dresses as well as evening.

In many respects these long-sleeved dinner dresses resemble the silk dresses of summer with sleeves sewed in, and many an economical Parisian is adding sleeves, wherever possible, to her last summer's frock.

A change in color, a new belt or ornament and an old dress appears in fresh guise. It has been a long time since the leading dressmakers suggested anything so practical.

Dotted Challis House Dresses

If you are wondering whether your printed cotton and linen house dresses will be comfortably warm for fall and winter days, and realize that they will soon look too summery, get one or two challis ones. Polka dot challis, which was popular for house dresses
a few years ago, is back again.

New Slipper Buckles

Smart opera pumps for fall wear have cut steel or bronze buckles that are very much larger than any seen for years.

EDMUND LOWE, DOLORES DEL RIO AND VICTOR MACLEAN IN "WHAT PRICE GLORY" WILLIAM FOX ATTRACTION

Strong Language in Play Put Across on Screen by Clever Pantomime
It is being freely predicted that printed sub-titles will all but be eliminated from moving pictures before the present theatrical season ends, due to an innovation which Director Raoul Walsh has injected into the film version of "What Price Glory," which comes to Lyceum theatre for a four day's engagement
Tuesday.

Captain Flagg and Sergeant Quirt,
"dressing each other down" with strong language on the screen where the film is being shown, not only fail to shock their audiences, but set a new style for conveying their remarks to their "hearers."

By a very clever use of the camera to catch the movement of the lips, the strong language feature of the stage play has been kept in its entirety without resort to the printed word.

Strong Cast Supports Miss Talmadge
—Picture Is Riot of Sophisticated Humor

In all her years of picture making, Constance Talmadge thinks the greatest comedy role of her life is in "Breakfast at Sunrise," now showing at the Lyceum theatre.

"Breakfast at Sunrise" is a story of French life and a strange marriage pact that develops so many complications it has the principals in the case in a maze to unravel it.
